- Do I Need a Website If I Have Social Media Business Accounts?

If you find yourself wondering, "do I need a website," the answer is yes!

With all the latest social media hype, it's common for many businesses to rely on social media platforms such as Facebook as their main source of online advertisement. They wouldn't be wrong to create multiple social media accounts for their business either. It's imperative that every business has social media in today's world. Yet, your company cannot thrive off of a business using social media alone. You need your website to be the backbone of your company's online presence.

• Why you need a website for your business?

- Social Media:
 - Always Has the Control
 - Always in a Constant Competition
 - It Should Support Your Website
- Your Website Is Important in Marketing
- Your Website Builds Credibility
- Communicating with your customers from yourmail@yourdomain.com still the official and professional channel

Although social media accounts are important to have and are a great tool for building your audience, they should never take the place of your business' website.
